Opportunities for Sponsorship

ECRO - The Scientific Society for Smell and Taste Research

ecro

Why should you support us?

The European Chemoreception Research Organization invites industrial sponsorship and private donations to support science and research in the field of chemosensation. ECRO will use your sponsorship funds to support active research, to increase the mobility of early career scientists, and to facilitate interaction of smell and taste researchers through the organization of conferences, workshops, and training courses.

Conference Support

ECRO hosts an annual conference in the fall of each year at changing locations across Europe. Funds provided under the conference support scheme will be used to subsidize conference organization, to cover travel expenses for invited keynote conference speakers, and to provide travel support for early career researchers at PhD and postdoctoral level.

Becoming actively involved in ECRO activities will give you the opportunity to:

- interact with more than 200 conference attendees;
- meet expert scientists, students, and industry investigators;
- discuss with top-tier international scientists in the field of smell and taste research;
- get informed about recent developments in chemosensory research;
- learn about breakthrough scientific discoveries before they are published;
- network with scientists and industry partners working on smell and taste;
- recruit students, postdocs, employees, experts, or collaboration partners.

In return for your sponsorship ECRO offers the following opportunities:

- named symposium (e.g. "your company name"- Symposium);
- full screen slide with company logo and acknowledgement (to be displayed during the conference);
- on-site advertisement poster and signage;
- tradeshow booth at the conference site;
- acknowledgement and publication of your logo in the conference program;
- advertisement of your company profile and logo in the abstract booklet;
- sponsorship posting on conference website with company logo and link;
- sponsorship posting on ECRO website with company logo and link.

Promoting Smell and Taste Research

ECRO Society Support

ECRO will be happy to establish long lasting relationships with Industrial Partners and values Small Company Supporters and Private Donors. We invite you to interact with the ECRO community beyond individual events and conferences.

Long-term ECRO Sponsors and Donors are entitled to various benefits and are encouraged to propose scientific topics for symposia at annual conferences. We are open to discuss how the needs and wishes of Industrial Partners and Private Donors could be satisfied. Individually-tailored sponsorship solutions can be discussed.

We welcome and value our small company donors. If your company is interested in sponsoring ECRO at a level not outlined in these pages or with a speciality from your company, please contact the ECRO President at info_query@ecro.online.

Donations/contributions will be acknowledged in the conference program as well as in the

About ECRO

ECRO was founded in 1970 and officially registered in 1971 as the Organisation Européenne pour les Recherches Chemosensorielles (European Chemoreception Research Organisation) in Paris, France, with the aim of promoting and coordinating science and research on smell and taste.

The society is a non-profit organization and has been affiliated with UNESCO since 1978.

Even though, ECRO is a European venture, it sees itself as a scientific association with global views and functions and is home to international members from all continents. ECRO's mission is to promote and to support fundamental, applied, and clinical research in chemosensory sciences.

It is financed through member subscriptions and donations from industry partners, private corporations, and research institutions. ECRO organizes scientific meetings, summer schools, and scientific training courses and provides travel grants for early career researchers (postdocs and PhD students) to support their participation at scientific meetings related to chemosensory science.
